

Yujing SAFETY GLASS is created by heating of flat glass to just below the softening temperature (650 ° c) and the suddenly cooling with jets of cold air. This results in the outer membranes under powerful pressure tension and the Interior with serious tensile stress. As a result, the effect will be applied to the glass to be overcome by the compressive stress on the surfaces to assure the safety of use. It is ideal for areas with high wind loads and areas where human safety an important consideration.
